

Market Debunk

#MARKETDEBUNK

One Phone

Call. Rs

7.2 Lakh

The 'Urgent' Trap

? COMMON QUESTION

Banks call you to demand immediate action or fund transfers to 'verify' your credit card.

✓ SOURCE-BACKED ANSWER

Legitimate banks never ask for sensitive credentials or money transfers over an unsolicited phone call.

How the Scam Works

1

2

3

4

The Cost of Trust

VERIFIED MARKET METRIC

Rs 7.2 Lakh

Total loss reported by two victims

This amount represents the life savings or hard-earned capital of two individuals targeted by a single scam operation.

Market Debunk

#MARKETDEBUNK

Red Flags

to Watch

For

@Market_Debunk

SWIPE

The Golden Rule of Banking

If you receive a call about your credit card, hang up immediately. Do not provide information. Instead, open your bank's official mobile app or visit your nearest branch to check your account status.

Why Uncertainty is Your Shield

Never assume a caller is who they say they are. Even if they know your name or card details, treat every unsolicited request for sensitive information as a potential threat to your financial security.

Protect Your Hard-Earned Money

Save for Reference

Bookmark this framework when making this money decision.

Share with a Peer

Send this to a fellow investor when they face this decision.

COMMUNITY DEBATE

Takeaway: Never share OTPs or click links from unknown callers. Always verify by calling the official bank number found on the back of your card. Save this post to remind your family.

